Who can use payroll giving?

Anyone who is paid through PAYE can use payroll giving to donate to charity. It can also be used by pensioners who receive a pension through PAYE. However, your employer (or organisation paying the pension) must have a payroll giving scheme in place for you and your colleagues to make donations in this way.

How does it work?

You complete a simple form, nominating the charity or charities you want to support and the amount you want to donate to each. Your employer will then deduct the donations from your salary and arrange for them to be sent via a payroll giving agency to the nominated charities. Payroll giving agencies are regulated by the Inland Revenue and administer payroll giving for employers, reducing the administration required for the scheme.
